Dear Parents,

As we are beginning the normalization process, we were all excited about reopening our school. We are happy about publishing our last booklet this month.

With theme of summer, fun visuals and activities are waiting for our valuable students. As the summer coming, the chance to play all day, every day is wonderful for children. They need those long days and weeks with no pressure to perform, or prove themselves, except by their own choosing. Play is the natural habitat of children. At play, they are using all their minds and their hearts to learn and grow.

We can relax some of the rules and worries we usually live by to let the fuller play happen. Having water fights in the yard, playing hide and seek at dusk in the neighborhood, staying at the park until it's really dark, making a mud hole and some really thick "chocolate" cakes in it, making a tent from a sheet in the back yard as a hideout, spitting watermelon seeds as far as you can — these are the kinds of play that don't require electricity, don't require any purchases. They just take imagination and a "Sure, that sounds great!" attitude from a parent.

Any play that includes laughter (and doesn't include tickling or making fun of someone) is play that helps children grow strong.

They gain confidence in the goodness of others as they laugh. They feel like there's a genius in the air when they laugh. And, chuckle by chuckle, they shake loose from their fears and worries. So let's have so much fun and laugh this summer.

We miss our little valuable students, and we are waiting to meet them again. Thank you for your all supports.

Stay happy and healthy!
